P&H members seek raise

BY RICHARD MEEK

Hancock County Port & Harbor Commissioners may soon be better compensated for their service.

The Commission adopted a resolution during Monday's meeting to petition the Legislature to grant commissioners a raise to $75 per diem. Currently, the commissioners receive $40 per diem, but that rate has not been changed since the mid-1980s.

Commission President Dave McDonald said commissioners should not have to be penalized by taking time away from their fulltime jobs to serve on the P&H, which is the county's economic development arm. He said some commissioners are docked when they have to miss work to attend a P&H meeting.

"Some commissioners could come to a meeting and lose money," McDonald said. "No body gets on the board because of pay (but) they should not have to suffer to be on a public agency."

McDonald said when the commission was first formed in 1963, commission members were paid $10 per diem. In 1978, the rate was increased to $22.50, and increased in the mid-80s to the current rate.

"We are going to ask the legislature to come into modern times," he said. "It's been about 15 years at $40 a time."

In other P&H news:

The commission is asking the county Board of Supervisors to pave 350 feet of Airport Road D in the Stennis Airport. The county is currently paving Texas Flat Road, which intersects with Road D in the airport.

P&H Deputy Director William Stovall estimated the cost of the paving to be $30,000-$35,000.

Waveland, District agree on sale terms

BY BETSY GAGNET

The City of Waveland and the Hancock County Wastewater District #1 met Thursday to nail down terms of an agreement over sewer lines the city acquired from the Jubilation Casino and the Cure family.

The proposed agreement states the District "would acquire the lift station at Jubilation, the lift station at Buccaneer State Park, all lines and equipment from Jubilation to the lift station at Buccaneer, and all equipment with those two lift stations including six-inch force main to Central and Waveland avenues."

The city will also grant the District a perpetual easement from the Buccaneer lift station to the treatment plant, leave the force main from Buccaneer to Sears in existing right-of-way and the District will pick up a line at Sears and Waveland Avenues to establish a new right-of-way.

In return, the city will be paid $50,000 by the District, payment of which will be spread over five years.

Additionally, the District will modify the city's lift station at Waveland and Central to maintain proper service to Waveland residents.

The city will continue to receive the net revenues from Buccaneer, receiving payment after paying the actual treatment costs incurred by the District for providing service to Buccaneer.

Under the terms of the proposed agreement, the current District board will not object to any annexation proceedings by the city. The city has no current annexation plans for that area.

Bay High teacher running for a cause

BY BETSY GAGNET

This summer Lis Lagarde will run in her first marathon with two goals in mind—finishing the race, and raising money to help people with leukemia.

Lagarde, a teacher at Bay High School, is part of Team in Training, a Leukemia Society of America program in which individual runners raise money for leukemia patients and research.

Through the Leukemia Society, Lagarde was matched with two area residents suffering from the disease, in whose honor she will run.

Patricia Warden of Lakeshore is one of those people.

At five years old, Patricia has already undergone over one year of chemotherapy and has about one and a half years to go.

In October of 1996, Patricia developed what her mother, Mary Warden, thought was a cold. When symptoms persisted, blood work was ordered and leukemia was diagnosed, explained Warden.

Patricia spent six weeks in the hospital for chemotherapy treatment after being diagnosed. For the next six months she spent from Wednesday to Saturday in the hospital every three weeks for treatment, Warden said.

Patricia has also been diagnosed with a neuromuscular disease, which went undiagnosed until after she began treatment for the leukemia.

"One of the drugs she took for (the leukemia) brought out the disease," said Warden. "We didn't know she had it."

The disease inhibits Patricia's walking and she has un-

Lagarde will also be running in honor of Jason Jones, 17, who attends Pass Christian High School.

Jason was on vacation visiting his father and thought he had the flu and was diagnosed," said Lagarde. "They

"I figure if nothing else, I'll walk...What we have to go through is nothing compared to what (leukemia patients) have to go through..."

Police Department was alerted and confirmed that Reed was wanted in connection with the bank robbery.

Reed was being held in the Hancock County jail under a $25,000 bond, Hoda said.

City-county education boards discuss Vo-tech

The Hancock County Board of Education met March 10 with the Bay St. Louis Board of Trustees to discuss options for continuing a partnership with the vocational programs offered through the Hancock County School District.

The meeting was the first of its nature and will not be the last, as the two districts recognized a number of innovative program opportunities that could be pursued as a team.

Due to the rich diversity of the two districts, it was determined that each could bring resources that would benefit students of both districts not only academically and vocationally but socially as well.

The two districts agreed that a common goal of each is to provide the best educational experience for students in Hancock County and to make their district models for the state and nation. The city-county districts will meet again March 31 with their superintendents to discuss program goals and district responsibilities with regard to the vocational program for the 1998-1999 school year.

In the future, the two boards will come together twice a year during the months of October and March to discuss district goals, initiatives, programs, etc. and how each could benefit and assist the other in providing the students of their district with the best in educational opportunities.

Voices of Hope April 4

Clarification

Information in an article March 12 on the sewerage extension planned in Shoreline Park was incorrect, according to Pam Gauthreaux, administrator of Hancock County Wastewater District 1.

"The new $2,000 connection fee is for new homes being built on vacant land, and the District installs the grinder equipment on the right of way," Gauthreaux explained. "The customer is still responsible for providing a line from his home to the equipment on the street."

Pearlington cable company to have WLOX's signal

BY ED LEPOMA

Pearlington cable subscribers, blacked out of local news broadcasts for years, should begin receiving Biloxi's WLOX Channel 13 within 45 days.

WLOX vice president and general manager Leon Long confirmed Thursday a deal was struck with Mediacom's Director of Marketing, Todd Beauchamp, late Wednesday. Under the agreement, WLOX is offering its signal free to Mediacom, which began serving the Pearlington area, the Bay-Waveland area and parts of unincorporated Hancock County March 1.

Beauchamp, speaking from Mediacom's headquarters in Gulf Breeze, Florida, also confirmed the agreement.

"We have to give subscribers 30 days' notice of our intent," said Beauchamp. "The whole process will take about 45 days."

And, Long said WLOX had to petition the Federal Communications Commission in order to expand its market area. "We filed that petition several years ago, and only recently did we get approval," said Long. Once the market expansion was approved, Long said he began serious negotiations with Mediacom, which resulted in the latest agreement.

Beauchamp said in order to accommodate the changeover, WLOX will come to Pearlington subscribers on Channel 3, and the Family Channel, now carried on Channel 3, will now come over Channel 35.

The agreement was good news to Hancock County District 2 Supervisor Rocky Pullman of Pearlington. Since taking his seat almost two years ago, Pullman has consistently asked the local cable franchisee to provide the local news to his constituents. In the past, cable subscribers could only get New Orleans stations that provided mainly New Orleans metropolitan daily news broadcasts.

Brett Favre Challenge Part set for April 10

Southern Miss fans will get an opportunity to help their school and celebrate a Super Bowl season with one of its most famous alumni April 10.

Former USM and current Green Bay quarterback Brett Favre, who has quarterbacked the NFL's Packers to two straight Super Bowls, challenged Southern Miss fans prior to the 1997 football season to pledge money to the school's athletic scholarship fund each time he scored a touchdown. Favre accounted for 41 touchdowns rushing and passing.

Brett pledged $250 himself for each touchdown he scored, and combined with pledges from USM fans, the fund-raising drive has brought in more than $101,000. Those who pledged to the fund will have an opportunity to meet Brett at three special parties throughout the day on April 10.

And if you haven't taken the Brett Favre Challenge yet, it's not too late, according to Eagle Club representative Robert McInnis.

"Brett is a great guy and a great role model," said McInnis. "We're still accepting pledges."

The first party will take place at 5:30 p.m. at Reed Green Coliseum for those who pledge $1 or more per touchdown. Pizza and soft drinks will be available, and Eagle Club officials will announce the final total raised by the challenge. A drawing will be held for 10 children to have their photo taken with Brett, and all children under 15 will receive an autographed poster of Brett.

At 7:30 p.m. a "one-on-one" party with Brett will take place at the Hattiesburg Country Club for those who pledged $5 or more for each of Brett's touchdowns. Photos will be made with Brett for the first 30 minutes and then a chance to visit with the former Golden Eagle star.

The final party, "After Hours With Brett," will start at 9:30 p.m. at Ray Sims' ranch in Hattiesburg and is available to those who pledged $10 or more per touchdown to the challenge. This final event will feature crawfish, beverages and a chance to visit with Brett.

For information on how to be a part of the Brett Favre Challenge, call the Eagle Club at (601) 266-5299.

"CUEVAS" QUOTES

By Ellis C. Cuevas

It seems that winter waited almost until spring to come this year.

As I write this column on Friday, we have had more cold weather in the past three days than we have had from the rest of the winter season.

In a way it is really a shame, as there are so many trees which have already bloomed, and others are in bloom in the area.

The late cold will probably kill a lot of the fruit on trees, so this year may be a bad year for items such as pecans, pears, figs, etc.

On the brighter side, I have heard several folks comment about how the cold weather has taken care of the gnats.

What happens though is, gnats survive the cold and will return as soon as it gets warm.

Folks feeling the bites of gnats for the first time must really get a shock. There is something one can hardly see, but sure can feel.

One of the best definitions of a gnat I have heard is that they are all mouth.

Still, I can put up with the gnats a lot better than I can with ice and snow.

From what I have been told, the Bay High Tiger band is still a few dollars short raising the $175 for each member to go the EPCOT next month.

Band members and several organizations have held various types of fund raisers to help raise the necessary money.

It is a great honor for the Bay High Tiger band to be invited to Disney's EPCOT to perform, and I am hoping they will raise enough funds.

Anyone interested in helping may contact band director Catchie Crider at Bay High's Band Hall, 467-4772 for further information.

Youngsters, ages 5-15, interested in participating in the Waveland Little League play, will have an opportunity to register from 1-5 p.m. this afternoon at the Waveland Ball Park, Central and Waveland avenues.

Registration fees are $25 for first child, $20 for second, and $15 any additional children.

Little League baseball is still a popular sport for youngsters.

Carlos Ramos of Waveland stopped by my office this week to show me a letter he received from an Nigerian resident.

The letter was almost like one I also received from a person in the same country about six months ago.

It appears to be one of those "get-rich-quick schemes," and I feel the best thing to do is to pass it on to the postmaster. This I did when I received the one mailed to me.

It is interesting the requirements of the letter: 1 - One blank copy of your company letterhead duly signed and stamped underneath. 2 - One blank copy of your company proforma invoice duly signed and stamped underneath; and 3 - Your Bank Account Number and Address where the money will be remitted.

Authorities tell us it is best to check those too-good-to-be-true offers, which are usually get-rich-quick scams, and never give them any personal information.

There are many schemes around these days, and business people as well as individuals have to be on their toes, because there is probably someone out there who would like to get into your pocketbook.

Bay resident complains about streets, ditches

Dear Editor:
After numerous calls to the city about city street conditions, still no answer.

Bay St. Louis city streets are a disaster. I live in Cedar Point where they've been working on the drainage for at least one year.

Ditches are dug up to four feet deep and being left wide open with no plans of ever being totally filled in. Yet, water still stands in the ditch.

I have young children all around my house. My next door neighbor was told that if he was so worried about it he should put up a fence. What kind of answer was that?

I don't have children, so what happens when one of their children gets hurt in my ditch?

Two days ago I had a neighbor and his car in my ditch. What if he got seriously hurt? I've been told that this is as far as the work is going, because the city doesn't have the money.

Yet every day they're out tearing up another street, and ours isn't finished yet. Not only the ditches, but the road needs repaving. Will this get done, or do we have to wait for someone to float a bond issue?

Where's the money from that giant property tax hike? Where's the money from the casino revenue? We pay for the wear and tear on the city vehicles, who will pay for ours?

IN CONGRESS

By Representative Gene Taylor

Puerto Ricans have served our military with distinction

On March 4, the U.S. House voted on HR 856, the United States-Puerto Rico Political Status Act. The bill, which passed the House by 209-208, would allow the citizens of Puerto Rico to hold an initiative to determine if they wanted to seek independence; seek statehood or remain as they are currently, a commonwealth territory of the United States.

I want to stress that this was not a vote on statehood for Puerto Rico, as some people would have you believe. HR 856 will only allow Puerto Ricans a choice of what road they would like to take.

Even if the people of Puerto Rico vote in favor of statehood, which they have not done in previous referendums, the path to statehood would be a long one. The House vote two weeks ago only allows Puerto Ricans, who are U.S. citizens, the right of self-determination.

This is a right the citizens of Puerto Rico have paid for by the military service of over 200,000 Puerto Ricans.

As I write this column, approximately 20,000 Puerto Ricans are serving in the Armed Forces of the United States. During this century, the 200,000 Puerto Ricans who have served in our military have taken a pledge to defend our nation. They have served with distinction, and thousands of them have shed their blood while in the U.S. military.

As recently as the Persian Gulf War, 4,300 Puerto Ricans served in the Armed Forces of the U.S. with 2,000 actually seeing duty in the Gulf. Even with the "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" policy, low American casualties in the Gulf War, four Puerto Ricans died for our country.

At the end of the Vietnam War, the Department of Defense listed 645 Mississippians as killed in action, 11 more were missing in action and eight Mississippians were prisoners of war. The people of Puerto Rico were not far behind. Some 522 citizens of Puerto Rico also sacrificed their lives in Vietnam.

The roster of Puerto Rican veterans in our nation's other wars is no less impressive. I would also like to point out that this roster includes five Congressional Medal of Honor recipients.

- Somalia (1992-present) — 700 served and one killed in action.

- Korea (1950-55) — 65,034 served and 300 killed in action. Mrs. Asuncion Rodriguez Acosta was the only American mother who had five sons serving at the front in Korea at the same time.

- World War II (1941-45) — 65,034 served and 72 killed in action.

- World War I (1915) — 10,000 served and one killed in action.

In all these wars, Puerto Ricans have suffered more casualties per capita than 49 of our 50 states. There is no question that the people of Puerto Rico have paid the price and earned the privilege of deciding if they want to become a state, remain a commonwealth territory or become independent.

Trauma-care system, other issues remain alive during 10th week

A statewide trauma care system proposal was still alive at week's end, despite other financial commitments' preventing its full funding in Fiscal Year 1999.

HB 966, authorizing the State Health Department to develop and administer the system, was amended and approved by the Senate Monday. Short of the $6 million requested, the proposal would raise about $2.2 million from increased fines on traffic violations and DUI convictions.

Supporters said they believe the anticipated revenue would be enough to get the work done.

They have been drinking drivers under age 21 will be given something else to think about after the Senate passed an amended version of HB 990, which changed the DUI blood-alcohol level from .08 to .02.

By strengthening the state law, we are hoping to save lives and to continue eligibility for federal highway funds. Included in the bill is a provision to allow "hardship" reinstatement of a first-time offender's driver's license.

NURSING HOME BEDS

Another bill headed for a conference committee is HB 1191 to allow Medicaid participation for certain nursing-home beds and much-needed new beds. For a number of years, Mississippi has prohibited authorizing new Medicaid-supported nursing home beds, but the growing need for them has prompted us to reconsider.

Along with other provisions, the Senate version contains about 900 beds, while the House bill calls for 1,500.

The Senate also passed HB 320, which would allow persons ready for parole from prison to undergo alcohol and drug rehabilitation programs in community work centers, rather than remain in prison for this treatment.

A Senate amendment — to try to ease prison overcrowding — would reduce prison time for non-violent, non-drug offenders from 85 percent of sentence to 60 percent. The remainder of their sentences would be under local supervision.

Lengthy debate occurred Thursday on HB 934 to make changes in statutory rape laws. The bill, with a Senate amendment, also continues a task force to study and make recommendations to reduce teenage pregnancies.

More than two dozen appropriations bills, dealing with state agency budgets for Fiscal Year 1999, were amended last week and returned to the House Tuesday, March 17, is the deadline for each chamber to vote on the other's appropriations and revenue bills.

House bills that were not amended by the Senate will head for consideration by the Governor, who can sign them, allow them to become law without signing them or veto them.

Among the measures amended by the Senate last week were:

- HB 609, the Mississippi Critical Teacher Shortage Act of 1998, which offers a variety of financial incentives and tuition loan forgiveness to educators who will agree to teach in geographical areas officially declared in critical need of teachers.

Mississippi close to adopting attempted murder statute

Attempted murder is not a specific crime under Mississippi statutory law. This may change if SB 2650 passes.

Presently serious and life-threatening injuries are covered under aggravated assault. What this means is that if someone were to stab another person several times and leave him for dead and the victim were to live, the perpetrator would be subject to a punishment of a maximum of 20 years in prison.

The new law will state: "A person is guilty of attempted murder if he attempts to kill another human being or attempts to cause or purposely or knowingly causes bodily injury to another with a deadly weapon or other means likely to produce death, or serious bodily harm."

If the attempted murder statute is adopted, the same crime would be punished by a minimum of 20 years imprisonment.

I think that the law should be able to distinguish between assault and a crime which almost takes a person's life.

Individuals with questions or comments may reach Rep. Dedeaux through the Capitol switch at (601) 359-3770.

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome
LeDoux, SVD

With well over six billion people running around the world, it is hard to imagine that there is a metaphysical connection between all of them. Yet, that is the precise claim of no less an authority than Jesus Christ: "I am the true vine; you are the branches. Whoever remains in me and I in him will bear much fruit, because without me you can do nothing" (Jn. 15:1,5).

So that refers to the followers of Jesus, but does it refer to others as well? Jesus clarifies this beyond a doubt: "I am the gate for the sheep. I am the good shepherd. I have other sheep that do not belong to this fold. These also I must lead, and they will hear my voice, and there will be one flock, one shepherd" (Jn. 10:7,14,16).

There is little doubt that most of those six-billion-plus human beings couldn't care less that Jesus considers them a potential and longed-for part of this flock, or that Jesus wants them to be branches vitally attached to him.

Those mind-boggling billions just go on multiplying by tens of millions each year, swelling the population of India so fast that the Indians should surpass the Chinese in population by the year 2040. Jesus is hardly on their mind.

Still, in spite of their resistance to the idea of being branches of Jesus the true vine, the reality of the mode of being is no less real. But how can those milling billions belong to the body of Jesus Christ against their will?

Because, if their intentions are good, they implicitly want to find eternal salvation through Jesus Christ.

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only Son, so that everyone who believes in him might not perish but might have eternal life" (Jn. 3:16).

Willy nilly, all the world's billions are involved in the generous, compassionate, loving plan of God for them. Even those who explicitly reject Jesus Christ implicitly embrace him, provided they follow their conscience as they know it.

As for Christians, despite the numerous denominational splinters, there is nonetheless but one spiritual body of Jesus Christ containing all of the motley mixture directly or indirectly. Again, faith and good will determine this.

Paul speaks of the branches that we are with a metaphor slightly different from the one used by Jesus:

"As in one body we have many parts, and all the parts do not have the same function, so we, though many, are one body in Christ and individually parts of one another" (Rm. 12:4-5).

This metaphor, just as that of the branches, is fabulous, but it poses a problem for our imagination as Paul goes on to compare us to eyes, ears, hands, feet and other members.

There are just too many billions of people living now.

However, if we make the comparison not just body members but also body cells, we have an abundance of parts to which we can compare ourselves, for our body is comprised of some

God's crazy quilt

100 trillion cells which make up all our members and parts.

Because of Jesus Christ the true vine, there is a solidarity throughout all the peoples of the world. Because of his one body of which we are the cells, we are all siblings.

With infinite wisdom and detail of beauty and grace, God fashioned a marvelous six-billion-plus piece crazy quilt.

Two Ways To Get The Information You Need About Your New IRA Options:

1. Stop By Any Hancock Bank
2. Study This Ad Carefully

The bad news is the geniuses who write our tax law have made things even more complex. The good news is you have more options than ever. The guide below is an attempt to simplify things in print. You can figure out your options if you study it carefully. But why bother? Come into any Hancock Bank and let us help you turn the confusion to your advantage.

Making the Right Choice

These 3 scenarios portray typical situations and possible choices. Although your own situation may closely resemble one of these, keep in mind that the right decision for you depends on a careful review of your own needs and resources.

Scenario 1: Tom and Anne Murphy are a two-income couple in their late 20's with one child. Their primary asset is their new home, which they invested almost all of their savings to purchase last year. With an annual income of $49,000 and no established retirement account yet, they know they need to start a program soon. Which program is best?

Recommendation: Tom and Anne might begin contributing to a Roth IRA because it may provide a higher after-tax return if they expect their tax rate to remain the same or increase in future years.

Scenario 2: Trish and Allen Scioto are in their late 40's with two children in college. Allen, the only income earner, has $46,000 in a traditional IRA, $76,500 in his employer's 401(k) program (into which he contributes 12% of his annual salary), and an additional $63,000 in stocks and mutual funds. The Sciotos owe $111,000 on their $215,000 residence, with the mortgage scheduled to pay off in 13 years. Under the new tax laws, should the Sciotos consider changing their retirement programs?

Recommendation: Assuming the Scioto's adjusted annual income on their joint return is less than $100,000 and they will be in a higher tax bracket in the future, they may consider a roll-over of their traditional IRA into a Roth IRA in 1998 and pay the taxes over four years. This will allow the balance to grow tax-free as well as future contributions and earnings. In addition, Allen could continue to participate in his employer's 401(k) plan, especially if his employer matches his contributions. If not, he may need to compare the return on his 401(k) investment to a self-directed Roth IRA.

Scenario 3: Alice Jenkins is 63 and plans to retire next year. Her employer's retirement plan plus Social Security will generate $3,850 per month, about 85% of her present income. Alice has $173,000 in a traditional IRA, plus $126,000 in bonds and mutual funds. With no spouse, two children and three grandchildren, she has no immediate needs to support anyone other than herself. However, she would like to help with the educational costs of her grandchildren. Alice has read a little about new investment vehicles. Should Alice make a change in her investments?

Recommendation: Assuming $3,850 is enough for Alice to live comfortably on during her retirement, she might begin contributing to Education IRAs for her three grandchildren. Also, if Alice doesn't have a need to begin taking distributions from her traditional IRA at age 70 1/2, she may consider rolling it over into a Roth IRA. The money can then be passed on to her heirs and withdrawn tax-free at a later date.

Inmate suits targeted by legislature

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Mississippi inmates in recent years have filed hundreds of lawsuits against the state on a wide array of subjects—from conjugal visit rights to beating allegations.

Two years ago, lawmakers decided to go after prisoners who file frivolous lawsuits—forcing them to pay some of the court costs and lose some of their earned good time.

The subject has been revived this year, and two bills headed to the governor are designed to put a further dent in frivolous suits.

Right now, 110 cases are pending against the Department of Corrections and in the last six months 75 cases were dismissed, according to the attorney general's office.

The price tag for defending the lawsuits is more than $500,000 a year, said Assistant Attorney General Trey Bobinger.

He said money is being wasted, and cites the lawsuit involving the HIV-infected inmate who sued because he was denied conjugal visits.

"Everybody says 'that's crazy,' but if somebody sues, we have to go into court," said Bobinger.

The House and Senate have passed two separate bills on the issue.

The first would clarify when inmates may be penalized for filing needless lawsuits. Previously, the Legislature said that could happen when a judge ruled the suit was frivolous.

The new standard would be when the lawsuit is dismissed as being "frivolous, malicious or for failure to state a claim upon which relief could be granted."

"There's a gray area on interpreting what a frivolous lawsuit is. They wanted that for clarification," said House Penitentiary Committee chairman Bennett Malone, D-Carthage.

Signing editorials, free obits added to legal ad bill

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—A East Mississippi lawmaker convinced the House to venture off again into the realm of requiring newspaper editorial writers to sign their work.

Rep. Tommy Horne, I-Meridian, called the proposal his "Yellow Dog Journalism" amendment. He failed two years ago to keep the amendment in a bill that would exempt free community newspapers from sales taxes.

Horne said he was not going to offer the amendment again but the bill that would only have increased the fees for running legal advertisements was too good of a target.

"What this amendment says is if a newspaper requires you to sign your name to a letter before they'll publish it, a letter to the editor, they in turn, when they castigate, malign and degrade you in their editorials, then 'somebody's got to have their name at the bottom of it... it will be a human being with a name,'" Horne said.

Dan Phillips, publisher of The Oxford Eagle and president of the Mississippi Press Association, said the amendments "would not even hold up in a court law as being constitutional."

Some newspaper editors do sign editorials, he said.

Phillips said Horne's amendment and others added could detract from efforts by newspapers to increase legal ad rates unchanged for 11 years.

"This bill is vitally important to the small newspapers, especially the weekly newspapers. The money they collect from running legal notices is a big part of their budget. Efforts, such as these, to hinder passage of this bill, are hurting the small newspapers of our state," Phillips said.

Under present law, newspapers are allowed to charge 8 cents per word for the first time a legal ad is run and 5 cents per word for each subsequent running of the ad. The newspaper can charge $1 for a proof of publication or a copy of the ad.

The bill would increase those charges to 12 cents a word for the first run and 10 cents a word for subsequent runs. The proof of publication or a copy would cost $3.

"These folks, their costs have been going up just like ours. We mandate that this stuff be printed. The solution, if we don't want to help this business, is to not mandate the printing of these legal notices," said Rep. David Green, D-Gloster.

The House also passed an amendment by Rep. Steve Holland, D-Tupelo, who runs a funeral home business, to require newspapers to run obituaries free of charge.

"We live x-number of years in this life then we cross over into the next. It (free obituaries) is only right," Holland said.

Holland said four or five Mississippi newspapers charge for death notices, but he did not name them.

"They say it is advertising, the very idea. It's very un-Christian," he said.

Another amendment passed would prohibit the cause of death from being placed in obituaries.

Rep. Jim Barnett, D-Brookhaven, said family members have suffered enough when a death occurs and do not need to read in the newspaper the cause, especially if it is something of which they might be embarrassed, such as AIDS or suicide.

If not for the House amendments, the bill, which already passed the Senate, would have gone to the governor.

The bill now goes back to the Senate for consideration of the changes.

The House and Senate have passed two separate bills on the issue.

The first would clarify when inmates may be penalized for filing needless lawsuits. Previously, the Legislature said that could happen when a judge ruled the suit was frivolous.

The new standard would be when the lawsuit is dismissed as being "frivolous, malicious or for failure to state a claim upon which relief could be granted."

"There's a gray area on interpreting what a frivolous lawsuit is. They wanted that for clarification," said House Penitentiary Committee chairman Bennett Malone, D-Carthage.

"Now judges will feel more comfortable."

Inmates will risk losing "earned time," which allows them to get out early, if a judge rules their suits are baseless. Corrections officials may take 60 days of the time for one suit, 120 days for a second and 18 (days for the third suit.

"Inmates will be hesitant to bring legitimate claims," said David Ingebreten, executive director of the state American Civil Liberties Union.

Ingebreten said the legislation is "part of a disturbing trend to deny or restrict inmates' access to the court."

He said the Department of Corrections also has limited inmates' use of law libraries.

"It's harder and harder for inmates to sue," he said.

The second plan at the capitol deals with inmates who have filed three frivolous suits already. They could not require the state to pay for their lawsuit costs in any future cases "unless the prisoner is under imminent danger of serious physical injury," under the bill.

Inmates with money in their special prison account also would have to contribute to the filing fees and could be required to pay all court costs if the suit is deemed unnecessary.

"We've got some jailhouse lawyers at Parchman," said Malone. "They know just enough to file a lawsuit."

"It had gotten out of hand. I think we're fixing to get a handle on it now," he said.

Sharon McFadden, circuit clerk in Sunflower County where Parchman prison is located, said about 200 lawsuits were filed each year in 1995 and 1996, against prison officials. She said the number dropped to about 150 last year.

Even still, she said, the cases burden the county.

The ones that are left are filing continuously. There's no end," she said.

Senate Corrections Committee chairman Bunky Huggins, R-Greenwood, contributes the lawsuit proliferation to jailhouse boredom.

"A lot of them are filing stuff to be filing stuff," he said.

But he said the threat of making inmates pay for lawsuit costs "is going to slow it way down."

The Department of Corrections has been sued successfully.

A 1996 jury ruled in favor of an inmate who was brutally beaten after an escape. Another lawsuit on second hand smoke prompted state officials to review smoking policies in prisons.

Malone said there are some valid lawsuits, but some are obviously not.

"Just wasting taxpayers dollars like they're doing, the public is tired of that," he said.

El Nino may result in fewer strong tornadoes for Midsouth

El Nino, the weather phenomenon most recently blamed for Florida's killer tornadoes, actually may benefit North Mississippi during the coming spring tornado season.

After studying 40 years of accumulated weather data, Mississippi State University graduate student William Monfredo is predicting a decrease in the frequency of strong and violent 1998 season tornadoes — those rates 2-5 on the Fujita scale — for the central United States.

"El Nino won't worsen our tornado season," Monfredo said. "In fact, it may even make it milder."

The national tornado season is February-July, but Mississippi's peak is March and April in spring and November in the fall. Monfredo's research concerns only the spring pattern.

Monfredo obtained much of his data from weather balloon recordings. After analyzing the information with a statistical model, he determined that wind speed and direction were inconsequential factors. "Cap strength" is another matter, however.

The cap is the layer of air that forms between the warm, moist air nearest the earth and the very warm and dry air above the layer. Its strength and thickness are determined by the air above and below. In completing the research, Monfredo said he came to appreciate the "cap strength" is the key to the milder El Nino tornadoes.

"The stronger the cap, the longer it takes for building clouds to break through into the upper atmosphere," he explained. "The resulting storms and tornadoes traditionally are more violent than usual."

Monfredo said he believes El Nino — the periodic warming of Pacific Ocean waters — will cause this spring's cap to be "weaker and less frequent." This is good news for the Southern Low Plains (Northeast Texas, Arkansas, Missouri and most of Oklahoma and Kansas) and Mid-South (Kentucky, Tennessee and the northern halves of Alabama and Mississippi).

"While the Southern Low Plains should see fewer strong and violent tornadoes, the Mid-South region, the area most strongly affected by the results of El Nino, should benefit the most," he said.

But, he alert, South Mississippi

Monfredo said Mississippi's climate from Jackson southward is very different from the north and cannot be included among the areas seeing fewer of the strong storms. Other regions of the country, such as the Northern Plains, also will not feel El Nino's effect on any tornadoic activity.

"William has done an excellent job in analyzing such a vast amount of data," said David Arnold, assistant professor in the geosciences department and director of the department's climatology laboratory.

"He is the first to discover this link between cap strength and El Nino."

Monfredo, a Pittsburgh, Pa. resident, received his bachelor's degree in speech communication from Penn State. He is scheduled to complete his master's in geoscience from MSU in May.

Tornadoes

FACT: Tornadoes travel at an average speed of 30 mph, but speeds up to 70 mph have occurred.

It is very dangerous to attempt to flee in your automobile, especially in populated areas. In addition, a car offers little protection against the strong tornado winds. It is better to seek shelter in a sturdy building, but even a ditch or ravine offers more protection than an automobile. Move well away from your vehicle so that the strong winds do not roll the vehicle on top of you.

FACT: Tornadoes usually move from southwest to northeast, but have been observed to move toward the east or southeast on occasion and can move very erratically at times.

The typical movement from southwest to northeast makes the southwest portion of a structure the most susceptible to damage by a tornado's very strong winds. The safest portion of a sturdy structure is usually the northeast portion.

FACT: Opening windows may not protect your home from tornado damage.

It was once thought that opening windows prevented damage due to the sudden drop in atmospheric pressure as a tornado passed overhead. The atmospheric pressure within a tornado plays only a minor role at most in the damage process. Most structures have enough venting to allow for the sudden drop in pressure. Opening windows may lead to more damage inside structures — not less — due to the very strong tornado winds.

FACT: Tornado wind speeds increase with height within the tornado.

Storm cellars and basements offer the greatest protection from tornadoes. If neither is available, the lowest floor of any sturdy structure is the best alternative.

FACT: Tornadoes are not the only weather phenomenon that makes a "loud roar."

At night, or in heavy rain, the only clue to a tornado's presence may be the loud roar it makes, which sounds like a freight train. However, violent straight-line winds may also produce this roar. Nevertheless, you should seek shelter if you hear this sound.

FACT: Large hail may or may not precede a tornado.

Tornadoes often follow large hail. Often tornadoes develop within storms that do not produce hail. Large hail may also follow a tornado rather than precede it. Do not assume you are safe from tornadoes if you do not observe hail.

FACT: Tornadoes may occur at any time of the day or night.

It is important to have access to tornado warning information even when you are asleep. NOAA Weather Radio with a warning alarm device is the best tool to have to be notified when watches and warnings have been issued for your general area of the state.

HNCE Multicultural Program

On Feb. 19-20, Hancock North Central Elementary School held its annual Multicultural Program. USM Gulf Coast to get academic dean

The state College Board has approved creation of a chief academic officer's position at the University of Southern Mississippi Gulf Coast and authorized USMGC to proceed with plans to construct a $5.6 million classroom building.

The search process will begin immediately to fill the new post of academic dean by July 1, according to Dr. Jim Williams, whose promotion from associate vice president to vice president of USMGC also was to be approved during the board's Feb. 19 meeting.

Williams said recent commitments from Harrison County and its five municipalities to provide $2 million in matching funds for a planned $4.54 million Advanced Education Center on the Gulf Park campus will allow that project to go forward. The state Legislature set aside $3.65 million for the building project in 1996.

He said the addition of a full-time academic dean, who will coordinate all academic matters at USM's three Gulf Coast centers, and construction of the new classroom building will help the university better meet the area's expanding educational needs.

The College Board also authorized USMGC to purchase — with existing funds — two Beach Park land parcels for future expansion at a total cost of $121,500. Additionally, the board authorized Gulf Park to proceed with $400,000 in parking improvements.

Responsibilities of the USMGC academic dean will include class scheduling, faculty recruitment and development, academic budget administration, assistance in the tenure and promotion process, evaluation of programs, preparation of program proposals, distance learning and accreditation leadership.

The academic dean will report to Williams and will have responsibility for coordinating all Coast academic matters with the university provost in Hattiesburg.

Reporting to the dean will be academic division chairs in arts and sciences, business administration, education and psychology, nursing and the director of Cox Library.

Oxford defeats Lady Tigers

BY RICHARD MEEK
The "Big House" turned into Bay High's house of horrors on Saturday afternoon.

The Lady Tigers fell behind early and never recovered in a 73-45 loss to Oxford in the Class 4-A State Championship game

Diamondhead hosts USTA championships

The Hancock County Tourism Development Bureau announces The Senior Women's National Clay Court Championships for 1998 are being hosted by the Diamondhead Country Club March 16-22 at Tennis World in Diamondhead.

The tennis championship with participants in age brackets of 60, 70 and 80 is an official USTA championship for senior women.

Many nationally ranked players are expected to compete, including Dodo Cheney, Sheila Evans, Elaine Mason, Dorothy Knodes, Nancy Reed and Doris Devries. Cheney, the No. 1 player in the nation in the 80's division, has won more USTA national titles than any other player.

The matches are open and free to the public. The tournament first round matches begin Monday, March 16 at 9 a.m. and will continue each day through March 22, 8 p.m.

For information, call Steve Garman, tournament referee at Diamondhead Tennis World, 255-5030.

at the Mississippi Coliseum. Oxford, 36-3, won its third consecutive championship game. The Lady Chargers have outscored their opponents 203 to 129.

"We played one of our worse games of the year, but you can't take anything away from Oxford," said Bay High coach Debbie Triplett. "We are disappointed, but were thankful to be here, we have accomplished what no other Bay High team (girls basketball) has done. I'm proud and positive of what we have accomplished."

The Lady Tigers, 33-4, fell behind 8-0, as Oxford's Jamila Quarles hit two three pointers in the games opening two minutes. Chanda Haley finally put Bay High on the board with 5:13 left in the first quarter on a pair of free throws.

Haley then scored four of the next six points to bring Bay High within three at 11-8, with 3:08 left in the first quarter, but the outstanding Lady Tiger center who has been the cornerstone of Bay High's three consecutive District championships, would end her career in an unspectacular fashion. Haley committed her third foul with 42 seconds left in the first quarter and fouled out early in the second half after scoring only eight points.

Haley's last field goal of her lustrous high school career came at 3:06 left in the first quarter.

"I didn't step up like I was supposed to," Haley said, "Oxford played a very aggressive defense."

Haley said after she committed her third foul, she couldn't play any defense period, it was only 5 on 4."

With Haley in foul trouble, the Lady Chargers broke it open with a 7-0 spurt to take an 18-8 lead with 5:12 left in the first half. Beth Barnes gave Oxford a 28-13 lead. The Lady Chargers increased the margin to 35-18 at the half.

"I told the kids at halftime that we were not in bad shape," Triplett said. "We made too many turnovers and did not shoot well. We were lucky to be behind by 17. I told them we could go out in the second half and chip away at the lead, it

Hancock's nine tops PRC 7-6

BY ELLIS C. CUEVAS
In baseball Friday, Hancock High defeated Pearl River Central 7-6, scoring the winning run in the bottom of the seventh.

With the bases loaded, two outs, Hancock's Daryell Williams walked in the winning run in the bottom of the seventh inning at Hawk field.

PRC took a 3-0 lead in the top of the first inning, while Hancock answered with two runs in their bottom of the first.

PRC added another run in the second inning and Hancock scored their third run in the third inning.

Hancock added two more runs in inning five, as PRC had added two runs in the fourth. At the start of the sixth inning, PRC had a 6-5 edge.

The Hawks added a run in the sixth tying the score. Winning pitcher was David Flowers in relief, whose record is 3-0 for the season.

Michael Ball hit a homer for Hancock, while Archie Pouncey, Michael Ball and didn't work out that way. Even after Haley committed her second foul 40 seconds in the second half, Triplett elected to keep her senior leader on the floor.

"I knew if we took her out the game it would have gotten out of hand," Triplett said. Chanda played well in the first half with three fouls, I didn't think I had anybody else to go to."

The Lady Tigers cut the lead to 13 on two occasions, the last coming at the 4:20 mark of the third quarter when Christina Bradley's basketball brought Bay High to within 46-23, but by quarter's end Oxford had increased the lead to 54-34, a lead that was not threatened over the final eight minutes.

Bradley led Bay High with 13 points and 11 rebounds. Meg Banahan led Oxford with 23 points, 10 rebounds and three assists. Allison Shaw and Marini Fitts, added 15 points each and Quarles 13.

Wayland Mayor John Mason sang the National Anthem at the opening of the game.

Shaun Necaise, each had two hits.

Ball and Breeze Brockhoff had two RBIs each for Hancock.

Hancock's record for the season is 7-2 and 2-2 in District play.

half-marathons, but has yet to reach her goal of completing a 26 mile race.

"My goal was to run (a marathon) in 1997, but then I started teaching," she said, explaining it's now harder to train.

She put her goal of running a marathon on the back burner for a while Lagarde said, but then received information on Teams in Training in the mail, which she regarded as a kind of sign.

She attended a meeting and decided it was time to run her marathon.

Although she didn't realize it at the time, an advertisement for the marathon in a runner's magazine had caught Lagarde's eye for a totally different reason.

Called the first Rock and Roll Marathon, the event features different bands each mile along the route. Lagarde had read about the marathon last year, commenting that it was the kind of race she needed to run because she would need the encouragement along the way. She never considered that she would be running in it.

"This is not a leukemia marathon," she said. "This is just the one the (Leukemia Society) picked to run."

Each runner is committed to raising $2,800 in contributions. Part of the money will help defray expenses for the trip, but most of it will go to leukemia research in Mississippi, said Lagarde.

"All the money Mississippi people raise, stays in the state," she said.

In addition to research, the Leukemia Society helps defray costs to the leukemia sufferers and their families for things like mileage and meals, explained Lagarde.

She has sent out letters asking for support and although she has had a good response, Lagarde said she has a long way to go.

As far as the race itself, she is looking forward to it and plans to finish one way or another.

"I figure if nothing else, I'll walk," said Lagarde. "What we have to go through is nothing compared to what (the leukemia patients) have to go through."

Anyone interested in making a contribution can call Lagarde at 467-6886.

"It does not hurt to ask," McDonald said.

After a lengthy discussion, there was no resolution on who should pay for future paving on Road 6 in Port Bismarck, a small park. The P&H recently completed repaving the road, but officials admit that in as little as six months, the road may again need paving.

A concrete company and logging company use the road, which extracts a heavy toll on the road, Executive Director Hal Walters said. Walters said there is an 80,000-pound limit on the road, but acknowledged that some trucks are "exceeding that by a significant amount."

"Only two tenants use that road, and it's anybody's guess as to who does the most breaking up," he said.

A resolution was passed by the state placing port fees on the area was proposed, as was Walters' recommendation to have a bond to cover the cost of repaving the road.

The grant will be used to rehabilitate parallel and connecting roadways, as well as other improvements to the airport. The grant requires a 10 percent match from the Commission.

The Commission refused a request from Gens Phillips at Phillips Aviation to not enforce an escalation clause in his lease at Stearns. Phillips' rent was set at $2000 with a 5 percent increase effective in March.

However, Phillips' original contract has already been reduced once after the casino charter business slowed in the summer of 1995. At the time, Phillips' rent was cut by $400 a month to the $1600 figure.

If not for that reduction, the new increase would have hiked his rent to $1458 a month.

"He's still $400 below the original contract," McDonald said.

Scott Aquarium opens registration for Jason IX

The J. L. Scott Marine Education Center & Aquarium in Biloxi is accepting reservations now for the March 16-20 live, interactive broadcasts of Jason IX, "The Oceans of Earth and Beyond."

School groups from south Mississippi, Louisiana and Alabama will join Dr. Robert D. Ballard, discoverer of the wreckage of RMS Titanic, and other scientists for the live broadcasts at 9 a.m., 10:30 a.m., noon, 1:30 p.m. and 3 p.m. Monday through Friday during the Jason project.

To reserve time for their classes, teachers should call 228-374-5850. Special admission to the center during Jason broadcasts is $2.50 per person for all ages. Sessions are also open to the general public, and individuals, and non-school groups are encouraged to attend afternoon sessions.

During the two weeks of Jason, students will descend into the depths of underwater canyons in a remote-controlled submarine. They will navigate through kelp forests in Monterey Bay, Calif., observe sea life of the Guaymas Basin in Mexico's Sea of Cortez and study the Atlantic Ocean off Bermuda.

They will have the opportunity to see scientific exploration as it happens and to do some exploring of their own. Dr. Allen Tubbs, Jason coordinator at MECA, said, "We are set up at the marine education center to have two possibilities for students to drive the ROVs (Remotely Operated Vehicle) or remote cameras each session," he said. "It is a live exploration, so you can never predict exactly what is going to happen; but we are glad to have two drivers instead of one this year."

Tubbs said the remote cameras and ROVs — unmanned submersibles — will allow students at the marine education center to explore the Monterey Bay trench.

"The Monterey Bay trench is over two miles deep right at the mouth of Monterey Bay," Tubbs said. "That's the subduction zone, where the floor of the ocean is going under the continental crust, and that is what causes the earthquakes out there. There are also cold seeps which support unique communities that survive without sunlight."

Tubbs said students attending Jason sessions would have access to two stand-alone computers and direct phone line so that they can interact with the scientists on site by Internet and by phone. He said all three screens will also be interactive this year.

Ocean Springs High School student Larry Stewart will join Ballard and the Jason scientific team on site at the expedition at Monterey Bay. Jason is in its sixth year on the Coast through the cooperative effort of the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command, the University of Southern Mississippi's Institute of Marine Sciences and a group of education-minded business and civic leaders.

Local sponsors include the City of Biloxi, DuPont DeLisle Plant, Isle of Capri Casino, The Sun Herald and WLOX-TV. Ballard founded the Jason Project after he received thousands of letters from school children following his discovery of the Titanic. Since then, millions of students have accompanied him as he explored the remains of Roman trading ships in the Mediterranean, warships from the War of 1812 in Lake Erie, hydrothermal vents off Baja, volcanoes in Hawaii, the rainforests of Belize, the geological "hot spots" of Iceland and Yellowstone, and the "other world" environment of the Galapagos Islands.

The Scott Aquarium is one of three Coast campuses of the Institute of Marine Sciences.

CBM receives donation

Southern Miss restructuring marine science

The University of Southern Mississippi's Institute of Marine Sciences will revamp its academic structure and under proposals approved recently by the state College Board.

Board members also took under advisement additional IMS proposals to expand degree offerings in marine and coastal sciences. They will reconsider them next month.

The long-range plan is to continue growing the institute's research, education and outreach capability, which will include expansion to the Cedar Point site and development of a national center for marine animal health research," said Dr. Jay Grimes, IMS director, expressing delight with the board's action.

In short, the institute will now:

- establish a Department of Coastal Sciences initially consisting of 20 senior scientists from the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory, formalizing programs ongoing at the Ocean Springs-based lab since 1947; and
- establish a Department of Marine Science at the Hancock County-based Stennis Space Center, replacing the existing Center of Marine Science there and incorporation its eight tenured and tenure-track faculty and research scientists.

The board also gave the go-ahead for nearly $200,000 in preliminary planning and design work on a proposed $337,000 Aquatic Environment Laboratory building.

Two old barracks-style structures will be demolished to make way for the 4,800-square-foot concrete building, that will house wet labs, offices and equipment.

The board delayed action on other IMS proposals to:

- offer a bachelor of science degree in marine biology, which would upgrade a current marine biology emphasis in biological sciences to better meet specific needs of the Gulf Coast region;

• offer a master of science degree in coastal sciences, part of an effort to expand and enhance graduate education opportunities in a rapidly-evolving discipline; and

• offer a PhD in coastal sciences, a move designed to attract outstanding doctoral students who will help develop the IMS as a center of excellence on a national and international scale.

"The institute will now be operating with a firm academic foundation comprised of the two new departments," said Grimes.

"They will be complemented by the continuing research and outreach programs at Gulf Coast Research Laboratory, the J. L. Scott Marine Education Center and Aquarium, and the institute's Stennis Space Center campus."

Creation of the two new departments will be effective April 1. They will be administered by chairs, who will report directly to Grimes. The department at Stennis represents only a name change.

IMS officials said there will be no need to hire additional faculty, and the present GCRL budget will accommodate the needs of the new department there. The necessary infrastructure — classrooms, teaching labs, research labs and equipment — already exists at GCRL.

Candidates for faculty status at GCRL will undergo review to evaluate and confirm their qualifications for professional appointment and tenure within the USM academic structure.

"As an independent, non-degree-granting member (historically) of the Institutions of Higher Learning of the State of Mississippi GCRL has offered marine, estuarine and coastal science courses since its inception in 1947," said the IMS proposal to the College Board.

The proposal cited a "long-standing association of GCRL with the USM Department of Biological Sciences that has been especially successful, and continues through participation of biological sciences faculty with interests in marine sciences" as a component of IMS and through the proposed BS degree in marine biology.

North Bay participates in Read Across America

In celebration of Dr. Seuss' birthday, the National Education Association sponsored Read Across America March 2. North Bay Elementary shared in this national day of reading through a number of special activities.

Students and staff participated in Storybook Parades. Dressed as their favorite book characters, groups took turns parading around the school. The parades were led by librarian Kay Covode, music teacher Karen Raines and PE teacher Rena Russell.

Throughout the day, each classroom was visited by a celebrity reader. The readers read a story to the students. Many of the stories were by Dr. Seuss. Celebrity readers included De-bbe Anderson, Brian Adam, Barbara Boston, Debbie Cox, Michael Cuevas, Judy Fletcher, Gene Green, Rocky Murphy, Sam Parker, Dave Stepro, Dr. Kim Stashy, Dr. Mike Reed, Connie Roth, Cindy Vernon and Sgt. Don Watson.

Three classes presented choral readings of Dr. Seuss books for other students in the school. These classes were Mrs. Roth's third grade, Mrs. Murray's third grade and Mrs. Jenkins' multi-age class.

All parents of North Bay students were urged to participate by reading a story with their child on the night of March 2. Certificates of participation were returned to school the following day and displayed in the cafeteria.

Third graders present a choral reading.

Book Character Day

On Feb. 20, the student body, faculty and staff at Waveland Elementary School dressed up as their favorite book characters. Students were read to by the character look-alikes as well as serenaded by a character parade.

Weekly story hours are held September through May. Programs last approximately one hour. The Kiln Library hosts a story hour every other Thursday.

Programs and activities are designed for pre-school-age children three to five years old who are not part of a nursery or pre-school group.

Library's book discussion group meets this week

Iphigenia at Aulis by Euripides is the selection to be discussed at the library's book discussion group's next meeting on Wednesday, March 18 at 7 p.m. in the Seal Meeting Room of the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library.

The source material for the series is Parent and Children, published by The Great Books Foundation. One selection from this book will be discussed at each meeting.

Reading selections have been chosen to stimulate lively shared inquiry discussions. This collection brings together works from around the world that speak to each other on a theme of universal significance.

Sponsored by the Hancock County Library System, the discussion group began in March, 1990. Since that time, they have completed 110 readings from great books (Plato, Houbes, Locke de Tocqueville, Freud, the Bible, among others), Mississippi fiction, play readings and 20 philosophical questions. The group will meet every other Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Information is available by calling David Woodburn at the library at 467-5282.

Naval personnel to staff Jason broadcast

Petty Officer Second Class Andrea Dockstader and Petty Officer First Class Larry Irwin of the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command at Stennis Space Center will staff Mississippi's interactive Jason site next month during the Jason Expedition.

The Jason Project, founded in 1988 by Dr. Robert Ballard following his discovery of the wreck of the Titanic, is designed to enable students and teachers worldwide to take part in global explorations using advanced interactive telecommunications.

Dockstader and Irwin volunteered for the duty this year for the second straight year. Last month they attended a two-day training session in New York to acquaint them with the technology, the program and procedures for technical problems during the broadcast.

Dockstader is assistant to the command master chief, and Irwin is temporarily assigned to boat operations in Gulfport.

At last year's broadcast, they worked with the technical part of the program — setting up equipment and communicating with the broadcast center — and the public — attending the people at the broadcast, running the question-and-answer sessions.

The Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command brought Jason to Mississippi in 1993, when Jason Foundation director Dr. Robert Ballard traded three free downlink sites for the Navy's help and cooperation.

The Navy also provided the equipment for the Mississippi sites, and installed the equipment at the J. L. Scott Marine Education Center in Biloxi. Since 1993, more than 30,000 teachers and students from Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana have experienced Jason at the Marine Education Center.

This year Jason will go statewide for the first time via live broadcast on the 29-school Mississippi Star School Network. In addition, a second interactive site will be located at Coahoma Community College in Clarksdale, and an additional network site will be located at the Russell L. Davis Planetarium in Jackson.

Vontoure keeps aircraft radar locked on

When a pilot flies combat missions, he doesn't have time to deal with instrument malfunctions. He relies on the plane as if it was an extension of his own body, needing it to perform at its peak on a continual basis. One wrong reading could jeopardize the air crew's safety.

Keeping the plane's radar transmitters and receivers operational is Aviation Electronics Technician Airman Robert Vontoure's job. Named USS Dwight D. Eisenhower's Blue-jacket of the Month, Vontoure works in AIMD's IM-3 Division as a CASS (Consolidated Automated Support System) technician.

"I troubleshoot radar gear and service it back into operation," he said. "I like my job because I know I have plenty of career opportunities whether I decide to stay in the Navy or try the civilian world."

Vontoure said learning different radar units keeps his job interesting. He gets job satisfaction from knowing he's giving pilots the best possible radar picture.

"I feel it's important to know how your job affects others," said the 20-year-old sailor from Bay St. Louis. "I like knowing that what the pilots see is the real deal, not a glitch. It makes me work even harder knowing someone else's life is on the line."

Vontoure performs a variety of tests and checks on his state-of-the-art test bench. The CASS bench was installed two years ago. It troubleshoots all kinds of equipment on aircraft, ships and submarines.

"The CASS bench is the wave of the future in the Navy," he said. "The bench supports many different platforms and is capable of checking gear from F/A-18 Hornets, S-3 Vikings, SH-60 helicopters and EA-6B Prowlers. With this bench, you can find out what's wrong with almost any piece of equipment."

Even though his job is a big priority, Vontoure still finds time for other things. He's enrolled in the EAWS program and is planning on taking PACE courses during the upcoming deployment.

"My approach to work is simple, but effective," Vontoure said. "I'm confident in my job, and I don't hesitate when faced with a deadline. I finish a job as quickly and correctly as possible so it doesn't overwhelm me."

He said working in a rating with many career options has helped him mature and taught him discipline.

"Before I joined the Navy, I was focused on having a good time, and I didn't really have direction in my life," said Vontoure. "I take my job seriously because I know that playtime is over."

AT1 Mike Nation, Shop 8LPA, said Vontoure's leadership attitude helped him get recognized as Bluejacket of the Month.

"He's a bench supervisor in charge of six Sailors and has shown leadership skills not normally found in junior Sailors," Nation said.

Roots and shoots spring up at Coast Episcopal

It was like an old-fashioned barn raising. Some were hammering nails into landscape timbers while others measured and cut. Others were putting soil into the newly raised beds in anticipation of spring planting. Still others were assembling and painting the gazebo. Most of the young children were playing in the mountain of top soil, while others played roller blade hockey on the basketball court.

All activity halted for a community lunch before diving back into activity that warm February day.

It was not a barn they were building, however, but a garden.

The Coast Episcopal families and friends all gathered Saturday to build the Roots and Shoots Garden at the school. It was the first giant step in what had taken almost a year of planning.

"We had a tremendous response when we first brought the idea back from Lexington, Va. and approached the administration and board at Coast Episcopal," said Susan and Mike Carron, garden coordinators. "The greatest reception has been from the students themselves. It's so exciting to see the children get involved."

Roots and Shoots is an intergenerational program that explores the mysteries of nature in a garden by sharing both fact and sensory experiences. This will be a garden where students, known as Shoots, and older community volunteers, known as Roots, grow vegetables, flowers and herbs together as "garden friends."

It creates a link between the young and old, between the community and the school.

"There's been tremendous enthusiasm and support from the whole Coast Episcopal community. It was easy to get help, and we thank everyone who volunteered," added the Carrons, who donated supplies.

The Katy Garden, as it will be called, is actually an outdoor classroom.

The design, by architect Allison Anderson of Unabridged Architects, is based on the needs of a teaching garden. There is a scarecrow garden, colonial herb gardens, a sunflower and wildflower garden, a Peter Rabbit garden, an alphabet garden and a water garden.

The Katy Roots and Shoots Intergenerational Garden has its own roots in the Roots and Shoots School Garden at Wadell Elementary School in Lexington, Va.

Many of the ideas and much of the curriculum came from the inspiration and generosity of Molly and Dirk Brown of Lexington.

Volunteers are needed to serve as mentors once the planting begins. Call Susan Carron at 467-3737 or Merry Montjoy at 467-5125.

New Orleans catches the Vodou vibe

The Big Easy go wild over Vodou? It was a given. And now the Crescent City celebrates with the New Orleans Museum of Art the opening of the nationally acclaimed touring exhibition Sacred Arts of Haitian Vodou with NOMA's own colorful beads and special Vodou-inspired beverages created by New Orleans' best bartenders. Visitors to Sacred Arts of Haitian Vodou will receive a strand of limited edition Mardi Gras-style beads created by NOMA. These beads will be available only on a first-come, first-served basis and only at NOMA.

With or without beads, Vodou fans can partake in the potent potions being offered by New Orleans' restaurants and nightclubs, a first in the Crescent City.

"We had a great success last year when we asked some of New Orleans' finest chefs to create egg dishes as part of Faberge in America. They came up with everything from omelets to egg-shaped chocolate desserts," said Sharon Litwin, NOMA's assistant director for development. "Like last time, we just made an open-ended request—create a drink that you think relates to Haiti or Vodou. And, like last time, we have been thrilled with the creativity."

The drinks being offered include a special micro-brewed beer, a trend martini, concoctions kissed by the cooling flavors of coconut and fruit juices, and plenty of offerings featuring that favorite island spirit, rum.

A brochure listing all the participating restaurant and bars will be available at NOMA during the exhibition. In addition, some establishments will be offering specials on food and drink, some with proof of a museum visit.

Those participating and their spirited offerings are:

Park Service restricts beach use on island

"To protect nesting osprey, beach restrictions will again be imposed on a mile of shoreline at Horn Island," announced Gulf Islands National Seashore Superintendent Jerry Eubanks.

This area, long the north side of the island, known as the Horseshoe, is marked by signs which indicate the limitations.

Although this stretch of shoreline contains the highest concentration of osprey nests on the island, no hatchlings survived the 1994 season. The Park Service believes this nesting failure was due to the heavy public use this area receives.

Unfortunately, the island osprey seem much more inclined to abandon their nests at the approach of people than mainland osprey. Camping or picnicking within a few hundred yards of the nests causes the osprey to take flight, allowing the eggs to overheat.

Following 1994's nesting failure, the National Park Service restricted beach use along this one-mile stretch during the osprey nesting period. Since then chicks have been raised in almost every nest.

"This was the first time Gulf Islands National Seashore closed long stretches of beaches to campers and picnickers in order to protect osprey," said Eubanks.

The National Seashore believes that the short time it takes for people to walk by the nests has minimal effect on the birds, so "beach walkers" were allowed, but campers and picnickers were not.

Based on the last three years of success, the restrictions this year will be the same. All of the dunes and marches in this area are closed to the public, and the beaches are closed to camping, picnicking or uses other than walking along the shoreline.

The restrictions will last until Aug. 1.

"We believe we have been able to protect the natural resources while minimizing the inconvenience to the visiting public," added Eubanks.

The "WORD" for the Week

Dennis J. Prutow, Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

Life is full of ups and downs, good times and bad, fortune and misfortune. We usually rejoice in good times and abhor misfortune. The Bible makes an amazing statement, "We also exult in our tribulations" (Romans 5:3). How could this be?

In the end, we must acknowledge the importance of the unseen spiritual world about which the Bible speaks so much. God extends hope to human hearts out of this unseen world. Coming to grips with this hope is a primary objective of Christianity. This brings us back to the hard times.

The Bible goes on to say, "Tribulation brings about perseverance, and perseverance, proven character, and proven character, hope" (Romans 5:3-4). Difficulties in this life cultivate patience, perseverance and endurance. The Bible exhorts, "Let endurance have its perfect result" (James 1:4).

Difficult times have a way of bringing out a person's character. Is there deep and abiding faith in God? Is there commitment to live for God through thick and thin? Trouble proves the character of faith. Misfortune tests us. It tests our character. Tribulation results in character proven under fire. The outcome is hope. The person who goes through deep personal trials, whether financial, physical, or emotional, with his or her faith in tact knows the hope that only comes from God. Such a person has good reason to exult in those tribulations.

Church mission

Lynn Bell of Bay St. Louis will be joining a volunteer mission trip to Costa Rica April 25 sponsored by the Shalimar United Methodist Church of Florida.

This is the second year the church has joined with Hospital Biblica in San Jose, Costa Rica to provide this service. The group will consist of 34 doctors, dentists and construction workers who will provide free medical and dental care for approximately 1,200 children and adults and help build a metal framed church for a poverty stricken area south of the city and refurbish a school, according to Bell.

Bell asks anyone wanting to donate items for the mission to call 467-0438 to have your donation picked up before April 5 because the goods have to be packed in advance. She is asking for hotel/motel-size bars of soap, new non-battery-operated toys no larger than the palm of your hand, and Mardi Gras beads.

The group will also distribute 500 bibles, medical and dental supplies, small personal items and toys donated by various merchants and individuals, Bell said.

You Can't Get There From Here

The first time that I heard the statement, "you can't get there from here," I had to stop and think for a minute. Then I realized that you should be able to go anywhere from anywhere, and that this was just one of those little nonsensical statements. In life, our final destination should be to spend eternity with our heavenly Father, but it is amazing how many people believe that they can't get to heaven because of their past actions or deeds. God has provided all of us with directions to eternal life. The Bible tells us that although we have all sinned and come short of God's glory, God loves us so much that He gave His only begotten Son, Jesus, to die for us as restitution for all of our sins. We can indeed get to Heaven from here, we just have to accept God's direction.

For God so loved the world, that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.
- John 3:16

ARTIN' ABOUT

American paintings

Our Nation's Colors: A Celebration of American Painting Selections from the Wichita Art Museum are on exhibit now through July 27 at the Mississippi Museum of Art in Jackson. Hours are Monday-Thursday, 10 a.m.-9 p.m.; Friday-Sunday, 10 a.m.-6 p.m.

The exhibition's 69 modernist American paintings and works on paper are drawn largely from the Wichita Art Museum's Roland P. Murdock Collection. Included are American landscapes, urban scenes, portraits, regional genre scenes and visionary images dating approximately 1874 to 1965.

The exhibition explores values defining American art—rugged individualism, natural simplicity and democratic spirit.

Admission is free for MMA members, $6 for adults, $4 seniors (60 and over), $3 for children/students, age 6-college; and free for age 5 and under. Groups of 10 or more receive $1 off admission price.

Audioguide free with admission; $2 for MMA members. For tickets, call TicketMaster at 601-355-5252 or the museum at 601-960-1515.

This is a competition organized to encompass all of the southeastern United States, but open to stitchers wherever they may be. Welcome are entries from anyone who uses a hand-held needle with an eye in any technique from needlepoint and embroidery to French hand-sewing and quilting.

Information and entry forms may be obtained by phoning HMPs at 334-432-6161 or faxing 334-432-8843.

WAMA exhibition

The exhibition, on loan from the Arrowmont School in Gatlinburg, Tenn., features one of the finest collections of contemporary arts and crafts produced by the artisans on faculty.

A wide variety of media, including painting, drawing, stoneware, ceramics, woodcarvings and textile arts will be on display.

Also on display will be "A Cottage Industry: Arts and Crafts in the Home of Walter Anderson," an installation of the many domestic works Anderson created as a proponent of the nation's rich Arts and Crafts Movement.

The museum will also offer gallery walks for members and the public, free art workshops and a discussion as part of the ArtTalks Lecture Services based on the exhibition.

For details, call (228) 872-3164. Tours should be scheduled at least two weeks in advance.

The museum is located at 510 Washington Avenue, Ocean Springs. Hours are Mon.-Sat., 10 a.m.-5 p.m. and Sunday, 1-5 p.m.

Enjoy benefits of walking

Health walking, power walking, wellness walking—whatever you call it, it's an ever-increasing form of exercise that many find physically, mentally, spiritually and even socially rewarding.

There are as many reasons for walking as there are terms for it. The primary reason, however, is weight control. An overwhelming majority of walkers start to lose weight, and after the weight is lost, continue for other reasons.

"While there's really nothing magical about walking," says Dr. Leonard R. Kravitz, assistant professor of exercise science and leisure management at the University of Mississippi, "the fact is that people do lose weight walking because there's such a nice transition between not doing any exercise at all and simply walking. It's a natural thing to do."

Another reason people who begin a regular walking regime lose weight is they start making heart-healthy decisions about food, says Kravitz, offering these tips for those ready to begin a regular walking regime:

- Consult a fitness professional or certified personal trainer before you begin.

- "To get started on the path to fitness success," the Ole Miss professor says, "consult with a fitness professional trained to help you set and reach goals."

- Make your "walk" part of your life, like brushing your teeth.

The most frequent reason given for not exercising is lack of time. By walking every day at the same time, you can make it part of your routine. However, don't stress out if you miss your walk since that defeats the stress-reducing purposes. Remember that life gets in the way, and we must make adjustments.

• Begin at a comfortable but challenging pace.

While you don't want to over-tax yourself your first day out, remember that the harder you work, the more fuel you use, so to speak, says Kravitz.

When people first think about walking, they don't usually think about going fast. They want to lose weight or just increase their fitness level. However, aside from increasing your heart rate, speeding up offers another distinct advantage: It allows you to do more in less time.

• Choose the proper walking shoes and clothing.

Choose quality walking shoes and wear them only when working out. If you can afford two pairs, this will give your feet a break. When it comes to clothing, your choices will depend upon the seasons.

In summer, wear loose-fitting, light-colored shorts and a t-shirt or tank top. If it's sunny, wear a hat and sweat-proof sunscreen. In winter, wearing many thin layers is wise.

• Warm up and stretch.

Before each workout, begin with a mild physical activity that gradually increases into your workout. This is what a warm-up should do, says Kravitz. After your workout, you should do some slow, controlled stretching exercises to help prevent muscle soreness and promote physical and mental relaxation.

St. Patrick's Day

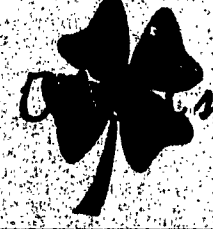

Everyone knows we celebrate St. Patrick's Day with shamrocks, leprechauns and clover. But do you know who this March holiday is celebrating? Keep reading and find out his interesting story.

St. Patrick is the patron saint of Ireland. He lived about 1,600 years ago, and was the first person to spread the Christian faith throughout Ireland.

St. Patrick was probably born in the year 389. When he was 16 years old, he was stolen from his home in Britain by Irish outlaws and was sold as a slave in Ireland. After six years as a slave he escaped, but he was determined to bring Christianity to the Irish.

Eventually, the Pope, the religious leader of the Catholic Church, made him a bishop and sent him to Ireland. In Ireland, St. Patrick converted many people, both rich and poor, to Christianity. By the time he died in 461, Ireland was on its way to becoming a Christian nation.

So why do we celebrate St. Patrick's Day with shamrocks? There are many legends about St. Patrick. One says that he used the three leaves of the shamrock to explain the idea of the Blessed Trinity. The Blessed Trinity is the belief that there are three persons—the Father, Son and Holy Spirit in one God. The Irish around the world celebrate in St. Patrick's honor on March 17.
